

Project Supplies:

Measuring cup, bowl & whisk
Baking Soda
Citric Acid
Water-Free Witch Hazel (in spray bottle)
Fragrance Oil
Water-Free colorant
Mini-muffin Pan or Muffin Pan
Wax Paper

SIMPLE as that!

Bath Bombs

2 parts Baking Soda
1 part Citric Acid
Spritzes of Witch Hazel
Fragrance Oil
Colorant

The batches we are making use 1 cup of baking soda to 1/2 cup of citric acid – which makes exactly 12 mini-muffin bath bombs. Start by adding one cup of baking soda to your mixing bowl and work out all the clumps. You can sift it if you like!

Next, add one half cup of citric acid to the baking soda – thoroughly mix and break up any clumps. The smoother your mix – the smoother your bath bomb

Now for the fragrance oil – the amount is completely up to you. To get the right amount for you, smell your batch – if you can't smell the fragrance enough add a little more. Remember, your bath water will dilute the fragrance oil so adding a little more isn't a big deal. Thoroughly mix into the powders.

Now for the witch hazel – which you need to add using a spray bottle. The amount is determined by your location. For arid climates, you will need more witch hazel – for humid climates you might not need any at all. I needed about 4 spritzes to get my mixture to clump in my hand when I squeezed it... which is what we are looking for. As soon as your mixture makes a nice clump – it's ready!

Add the mixture to your choice of mold! There are so many fun molds out there... the choice is up to you! But when making favors you need to be able to make a lot at one time – so a mini-muffin pan a perfect choice... Make sure to REALLY pack the mixture HARD into your mold. Push until you can't push anymore – this is what will keep your bomb together!

Finally let them dry completely for 24 hours before you package them.